Flood Fight Operations

This 2-day course is for emergency managers, public works officials, levee district representatives, and others responsible for planning, preparing, and managing the response to a flood, including flood fighting techniques, and working with flood control works. Using a combination of lectures, discussions, activities, and exercises, the course will take participants through the complete process from well before the flood to the clean-up afterwards.

The target audience for this course is Federal, State, Tribal, and local officials responsible for planning, preparing, and managing response to floods.
